Golf Club Mongomerie

The Montgomerie Maxx Royal (formerly known as the Papillon Golf Club) is the third European Golf Design project in the Belek area with Colin Montgomerie marketed as the course's attention-grabbing headline designer. The 18-hole layout is part of a multi million euro golf and hotel development that will eventually include a flood-lit 9-hole academy course with a large 5-star hotel and holiday villa complex, all of which will complement the other four existing Papillon hotels in Belek.

The course opened for play in 2008, quickly establishing itself as one of the best in an area that's not short of quality new golfing facilities. Many of the fairways play through mature pine forest and with eight lakes on site there are several water hazards to be avoided during a round.

In November 2013, the Montgomerie Maxx Royal hosted Turkey's inaugural European Tour event – the Turkish Airlines Open by the Ministry of Culture and Tourism. Frenchman Victor Dubuisson hung on to win the 2013 event, securing his maiden European Tour title by two shots from Jamie Donaldson with Justin Rose and Tiger Woods finishing two strokes further behind. And it will happen once more there in 2014!

Tat Golf Club

Belek is situated on a long, sandy coastline that leads to a forest of eucalyptus and pine trees at the foot of the Taurus Mountain range and it on this fertile ground that a large number of golf courses have sprung up in a very short time. TAT International was one of the first complexes to be developed when Martin Hawtree designed a 27-hole layout on 325 acres in 1997.

The three loops of nine holes – named TAT, Belek and International – are each configured with two par threes, five par fours and two par fives so whichever 18-hole layout you choose, it will have a par of 72 to play to. Situated on a tract of land between the Besgoz River and the Mediterranean Sea, it is no real surprise to learn that water comes into play at nearly half the holes on the property, though mostly in the shape of man made ponds and lakes.

Picking the best hole at each of the three nines is no easy task as there are a number of contenders on each loop.

The 193-yard, par three, 4th hole on the TAT is played facing inland, towards the mountains, from an elevated tee in the dunes to a green beyond a lake where the only bail out is right of the hole.

The 450-yard, par four, 3rd hole on the Belek plays along the coast beside the Med with out of bounds on the right – no beach recovery shots here! – and a large pine tree on the left at the landing area to hamper the over cautious tee shot.

The 517-yard, par five, 4th hole on the International begins with a blind tee shot and ends with a green that is surrounded on three sides by water so the best policy is to lay-up with the second shot then hopefully pitch and putt for birdie.

National Golf Club

The National Golf Club is a bit special even though it's relatively new and only opened for play in the autumn of 1994. This is a truly magnificent course, which is routed thoughtfully across gently rolling terrain and through mature pine and eucalyptus trees. The snow-capped Taurus Mountains provide a provocative backdrop especially as the course is bathed in hot sunshine for the vast majority of the year.

European Ryder Cup star David Feherty put his name to the National but we suspect David Jones did much of the work. Nevertheless, this is certainly Feherty's finest creation and possibly the best work yet from David Jones (but his new PGA Sultan course is pretty good too, and getting better all the time).

The National stretches out to almost 6,300 metres from the tips and it was the host venue for the European Challenge Tour and Ladies European Team in 2014. If you choose the right tee box for your standard of golf you will have a whale of time. We bet you won't be able to contain your smile as you sip a cool post-round drink of your choice on the wonderful terrace that overlooks this superb course.

Kaya Eagles Golf Club

Kaya Eagles golf course is set in natural pine and eucalyptus forests and features 18 holes that will ensure a challenging round of golf during your golf holiday. It was designed by David Jones who has incorporated the natural landscape to present an interesting challenge. The golf course offers something for all levels of golfer with four different tee positions to choose from.

There are excellent practice facilities at the Kaya Eagles golf club that you can benefit from whether you simply want to warm up before your game or practice your overall golfing technique. Take advantage of the 280 metre long driving range and large practice putting and chipping green.

After a tiring day on the golf course why not enjoy a refreshing beverage in the state-of-the-art clubhouse which looks out on the 9th and 18th greens. There really is something for everyone at this fantastic golf club in Turkey, so why not choose Kaya Eagles Golf Club as your golf holiday destination and make it a golf break to remember.

Gloria Golf Club - Old Course

The Old course at the Gloria Golf Resort opened for play in September 1997 and was fashioned by the French golf course designer Michel Gayon. It's one of the eldest Turkish golf courses and has become a true favourite for thousands of travelling golfers with many returning annually. The beautiful forest location at the feet of the Taurus Mountains provides a wonderful amphitheatre for golf and Gayon has created a classic design that will remain one of Turkey's great courses despite the boom of new layouts that are rapidly springing up in the Belek area.

The Old course opens up strongly with the 1st, a par five requiring an approach over water, followed by the par three 2nd, again crossing water, this time from tee to green. The Old Gloria course then continues through delightful pine woodland, with a collection of strong holes that bring seven lakes into play and more than sixty bunkers. Many great courses feature a short par four and the Old course has the 16th with a massive lake to the left, out of bounds to the right and bunkers at the green. Short yes, but easy it is not and par is always a welcome score.

The greens are maintained to a high standard with a carpet-like feel and are among the best in the area.

The Gloria resort boasts a fabulous new clubhouse, extensive practice facilities, a further 27 holes (including the New course) and an atmosphere for the golfer taking priority. All these factors help to make the Gloria Golf Club a very special experience.
